ART DISPLAY

NO OFFENSIVE works of art or crafts may be displayed in the Rockingham County Public Library.

Quality works are to be exhibited. Originals and signed, numbered prints are accepted.

Neither the Library or the County will be responsible or liable for any items displayed nor will we provide insurance to cover art works or crafts. The Library or library staff will not be responsible for the collection of funds for any items that are for sale. All transactions must be handled between the artist and the purchaser.

The Library provides some mounting hardware; the artist must furnish any mounting and additional presentation items.

If the artist or presenter wants information posted to our social media sites they need to provide that information to the library two weeks prior to the exhibition.

Each Library has a display case in which the public may exhibit items such as crafts, collectibles or artwork. These items may be for sale but the Library or staff will not be involved in the selling or collecting on monies. The Library or staff will not be responsible or liable for any items on display.

PUBLIC BULLETIN BOARDS

Each Library has a bulletin board display area upon which the public may post notices. These notices may not be political or religious in nature and may not be connected to a for-profit organization. Notices of church related activities that may be of interest to the general public might be accepted. All notices are subject to the approval of the Branch Manager. The Rockingham County Public Library does not endorse any of the information on these notices.
